last week, with almost the whole contents. The horses were saved and a few Wholesome Appeal.

Presented with an unexcelled company, appropriate scenery and surroundings of the first class, "What Happened to be the most interesting event of the season. Great publicity has been given this attraction from the Mary stories

That line of distinction so often obcured between graft and opportunity Aug. 26 Sept. 2-9 gets four people into a fearful mess in Fine Feathers," which H. H. Frazee will resent here at the opera house on Satarday, matince and night, Sept. 13th. The play comes direct from its triumphant record-breaking engagements in the Cort theatre, Chicago, and the Astor theatre, New York, where it ran all of last season. It is the story of how a woman's love of finery so twisted her viewpoint that the could not see where opportunity leaves off and graft begins, and Eugene Walter, the author, has told it in a masterful manner. Much might be written of the play, of the lesson it conveys, the philosophy it presents and the varied emotions it arouses. The story, in brief, centers around a young chemist and his wife, who are ighting a sort of uphill fight against FOUR LINES FOR 25 CENTS adversity with a meagre salary, until a business man, a sort of high financier, walks into their lives. He proposes what he terms an "opportunity" to the husband. It is a scheme to defraud the government by using an inferior brand of cement in fulfilling a dam contract. The wife views it as does the financier, as opportunity. To the husband it presents itself as graft. The wife, carried away by thoughts of what the money will buy, prevails upon her husband to participate in the fraud. He does so, not with changed viewpoint, however, but because of his love for her france beat; barn finished for cow and horse, and basement for pig and 150 hens; pilenty of large and small fruits. Reason for selling, business out of state. C. W. Merrill, Trow Hill, Barre, but because of his love for her. not with changed viewpoint, however, but because of his love for her.

It is upon this premise that the author has built a great big human document: a drama pulsing with human epoch making truths and from it has developed what has been quoted as the biggest play in the history of the American stage. It is said to be eleverly written and, incidental to the main plot Walter has introduced characters that are as original, as refreshing and breezy as the lines and his philosophy.-Adv.
